Has Clive Palmer endorsed Al Gore's Green Fascism?

Clive Palmer's press conference with Al Gore on Wednesday last week, committing Australia to an emissions trading scheme raises a very serious question: Has Palmer hopped into bed with the worst of the worst "climate change" financial sharks—namely Al Gore and his investment banking friends, which include Goldman Sachs and Macquarie banksters?

Al Gore runs Generation Investment Management (GIM), a London-based investment management firm with Managing Partner David Blood, a former Goldman Sachs CEO. GIM's founding members include Mark Ferguson, former co-head of pan-European research at Goldman Sachs Asset Management, and Peter Harris, former head of Goldman Sachs Assets Management international operations. The purpose of the "Blood and Gore" investment firm is to make a killing off financial speculation in "emissions trading" and other Green Fascist scams.

The Goldman Sachs business model—including building a speculative bubble in "carbon credits"—was exposed by Matt Taibbi in the 9 July 2009 Rolling Stone magazine feature entitled "The Great American Bubble Machine"¹. Taibbi characterises Goldman Sachs as "a great vampire squid wrapped around the face of humanity, relentlessly jamming its blood funnel into anything that smells like money..."

"The formula is relatively simple: Goldman positions itself in the middle of a speculative bubble, selling investments they know are crap... They've been pulling this same stunt over and over since the 1920s—and now they're preparing to do it again, creating what may be the biggest and most audacious bubble yet."

The article documents the role of Goldman Sachs in every bubble since the 1920s, including the IT bubble, the housing bubble, etc. and then defines Goldman's newest scheme, "the new game in town, the next bubble, is in carbon credits—a booming trillion-dollar market that barely even exists yet.... a groundbreaking new commodities bubble, disguised as an 'environmental plan,' called cap-and-trade. The new carbon-credit market is a virtual repeat of the commodities-market casino that's been kind to Goldman, except it has one delicious new wrinkle: If the plan goes forward as expected, the rise in prices will be government-mandated. Goldman won't even have to rig the game. It will be rigged in advance."

Gore is in Australia as part of The Climate Reality Project and is hosted by the Australian Conservation Foundation (ACF). The Duke of Edinburgh, Prince Philip founded the ACF in 1964 as a de facto subsidiary of the World Wildlife Fund (WWF), which he had co-founded in 1961 with former Nazi Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands and British Eugenics Society President Sir Julian Huxley. Prince Philip has repeatedly said he would like to be reincarnated as a deadly virus in order to solve overpopulation. The carbon swindle may well be just as deadly given its attack on the cheap energy that sustains our population.

Palmer stated his senators will move an amendment to establish an emissions trading scheme even though it has been a proven disaster in Europe since its inception in 2005. He pledged to support the Renewable Energy Target, which locks us in to inefficient, costly solar and wind power. He pledged to block the abolition of the Climate Change Authority currently chaired by former Reserve Bank Governor, Bernie Fraser.

High finance and "climate change" go hand in hand as per the Goldman Sachs model, so it's no surprise Reserve Bank board member Heather Ridout is also on the Climate Change Authority board. Established on 1 July 2012, the Climate Change Authority provides the Australian Government recommendations on emissions reduction policy. In effect, banksters decide on how to shut down our physical economy while growing their carbon-trading monetary bubble.

Palmer also said his senators will vote against the abolition of the Clean Energy Finance Corporation (CEFC), currently chaired by former Reserve Bank board member, Jillian Broadbent and whose CEO Oliver Yates was a former Executive Director of Macquarie Bank. Michael Carapiet and Anna Skarbek, two former Macquarie Bank executives are also on the CEFC board. The Australian Government provides an annual $2 billion to the CEFC, which invests for emissions reduction in a "carbon constrained world". Taxpayers funding this outfit end up supporting detestable and inefficient projects such as wind farms.

Palmer's infamous dinner on 29 May with Malcolm Turnbull and Treasury Secretary Martin Parkinson also raises some questions. Turnbull was former Chairman and Managing Director of Goldman Sachs Australia and has long been a champion of emissions trading since his days as Environment Minister in the Howard Government. Parkinson previously served as the inaugural secretary of the Department of Climate Change and has long been a climate alarmist and emissions trading advocate.

Clive Palmer has said that he stands up for the little guy. But how, then, can one interpret the agreements he has struck with Prince Philip's Green Fascist climate change mafia, promising a non-solution to a climate crisis that does not exist? Ignore the climate alarmists: As we have demonstrated, Australia must increase its carbon footprint.²

Time to act! Become a CEC member to fight Libs, ALP & Greens' fascist crackdown on democracy

The Australian people must fight against the fascist attack on democracy that the Liberals, ALP and Greens agreed to last month in Canberra.

The existing parliamentary parties put aside their charade of ripping into each other long enough to unite on changing the electoral rules to make it extremely difficult for other parties to contest elections.

Under the proposed rule changes, the membership requirement for party registration will be tripled, and the verification process will be much more onerous.

Conveniently, the existing parliamentary parties will not be subject to these registration requirements!

This decision is not about the large Senate ballot paper in the 2013 federal election; it is about terror among the powerbrokers in Australia's major banks and corporations at the growing revolt in the general population against their bought-and-paid-for political parties, a revolt which is spawning a host of new parties.

Chief among the targets of this rule change is the Citizens Electoral Council. Unlike most alternative parties, which might flare brightly but then quickly burn out, the CEC has been a political force in this country for 25 years.

More importantly, the CEC is the clear opposition in Australia to the disastrous free market consensus between the Liberals, ALP and Greens, under which Australia's economy has degenerated into a raw materials quarry and financial casino.

Now, as we stand on the edge of a new, far worse global financial collapse than that of 2008, the CEC uniquely is mobilising for Glass-Steagall legislation to split our Too Big To Fail (TBTF) banks into normal commercial banks servicing the community and the real economy on the one hand, and speculative investment banking on the other. The former will receive government backing, but the speculators will be left to sink or swim—and speculation forms the bulk of the assets of the Big Four and Macquarie. Following the enactment of Glass-Steagall, we must start to pour credit into the real economy, into family farms, manufacturing and great infrastructure projects. For this purpose the CEC has drafted ready-to-enact legislation for a new national bank as well as specifications for major new infrastructure projects in water, power, and transport which will unleash a recovery of our physical economy, and provide a well-paying job to anyone who wants one.

The reality is that the TBTF banks own the entrenched political parties, who have pledged to bail them out when they collapse, as they most certainly will when some of their $23 trillion in derivatives speculation goes bad or when our nation's mortgage bubble—one of the worst in the world—finally pops, as it inevitably soon will.

The banks take full advantage of this arrangement to loot the Australian people of tens of billions each year, through outrageous fees, artificial clearance delays, high interest rates, and crushing penalty interest rates on struggling farms and small businesses. This looting extends to their reckless speculation in real estate and mortgages, which has made housing completely unaffordable, and loaded Australian households with record debt, now 177% of household income (up from 60% in 1990). Together with skyrocketing costs for electricity, toll roads, and services from formerly state-owned assets which the "major" parties have privatised, the burden of servicing the interest on this debt is driving the cost of living crisis in Australia. The banks are funnelling every spare cent into this property bubble, by starving the productive small business and farming sectors of the economy of credit, which is driving many enterprises to the wall.

This omnipresent looting by the banks is fuelling the political revolt in the population. But instead of taking action against this theft, the parties in Canberra are carrying out the orders of their TBTF masters to suppress any political revolt, by excluding alternative political parties.

Time to act

It is time for Australians who support Glass-Steagall and national banking to stand with the CEC by joining as an Associate Member.

The CEC is on a nationwide membership drive, which aims to go well beyond the new membership requirement to make it impossible for this naked political suppression to succeed.

Join the CEC today.
