The truth behind "population stabilisation"

The ACF Comes Out of the Closet for Genocide

In March of this year, the Australian Conservation Foundation (ACF) made a formal submission to the Environment in which it claimed "human population growth" to be a "key threatening process" to the environment, and called for cutting back Australia's population growth. Couched in euphemisms such as the need to "stabilise population", the ACF's submission is in fact part of the long-standing crusade for mass genocide by Prince Philip, the ACF's founder and former president from 1971-76: that the human population of the planet should be cut back from its present 6.8 billion to 2 billion or less, particularly in the context of the present, deepening global financial crash.

Prince Philip has repeatedly advocated mass murder far beyond Adolf Hitler's wildest dreams, as in his infamous 1988 statement to the German Press Agency: "In the event that I am reincarnated, I would like to return as a deadly virus, in order to contribute something to solve overpopulation." He has also argued that man is just another animal who should be "culled" as necessary: "You cannot keep a bigger flock of sheep than you are capable of feeding. In other words conservation may involve culling in order to keep a balance between the relative numbers in each species within any particular habitat. I realise this is a very touchy subject, but the fact remains that mankind is part of the living world. ... Every new acre brought into cultivation means another acre denied to wild species." [emphasis added]

The dirty little secret behind the present mass hysteria which the British Crown is now whipping up in Australia against "runaway population growth", is that the "environmentalist movement" was created from scratch by the British Crown. In particular for the Crown-centred world financial oligarchy's intent to obliterate modern sovereign nation states, by attacking the science, technology, and infrastructure upon which such sovereignty depends, and the population growth which naturally, necessarily accompanies it, which growth these oligarchs view as a mortal threat to their continued power. That reality becomes obvious in looking at the WWF itself, the mother organisation of the global environmentalist movement: Its co-founders in 1961 were the self-professed genocidalist Prince Philip; Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands, a former member of the Nazi SS; and Sir Julian Huxley, the then-head of the British Eugenics Society. Following World War II, Huxley as the first head of the U.N. Educational, Scientific, and Cultural Organization (Unesco), had lamented that although Hitler's eugenics-centred policy of mass genocide had momentarily discredited "eugenics" in its own name, the policy must continue, if under other guises: "Thus even though it is quite true that any radical eugenic policy will be for many years politically and psychologically impossible, it will be important for Unesco to see that ... the public mind is informed of the issues at stake so that much that now is unthinkable may at least become thinkable."

After founding the WWF in 1961, Prince Philip set the ACF in motion during his 1963 Royal Tour of Australia. Huxley deployed his student and longtime protégé, Francis Noble Ratcliffe, to formally found it. Already in a 1929 letter back home to his family in Britain, the pommy immigrant Ratcliffe sniffed that he found Australians to be generally "low types", and that, "Unfortunately the independent, arrogant spirit of the people [Australians] precludes the possibility of a Mussolini. If one did appear, I may say, I should be one of the first to put on a black shirt."

Prince Philip's replacement as ACF head in 1977, the London-trained Nugget Coombs, a self-described member of the "international freemasonry of central bankers" who had sabotaged most of Curtin and Chifley's great postwar plans for economic development, argued that same year that population growth must be "halted, reduced and stabilised at an ecologically safe level". His longtime lover, anthropologist Judith Wright McKinney, meanwhile co-founded Sustainable Population Australia (SPA), whose leadership today overlaps that of the ACF, including current ACF president Professor Ian Lowe.

Malthus, Darwin and Genocide

The quack “science” upon which the environmentalist movement is premised all descends from Parson Thomas Malthus, and his follower Charles Darwin. Malthus was a life-long employee of the British East India Company (BEIC), for whom the company created Britain’s “first chair in political economy” at its Haileybury College training centre. He wrote his Essay on Population to justify massive cutbacks in the Poor Laws in Britain in the late 18th and early 19th century, along with the BEIC’s mass murderous policies in India. Against all historical evidence to the contrary, Malthus argued that “population grows geometrically while the means of subsistence only grows arithmetically”, and therefore recommended gruesome measures to “stabilise the population”, including mass infanticide and the wilful spread of disease.

Thomas Malthus, Charles Darwin and Prince Philip, all champions of the race science of eugenics, which gave rise to Hitler’s genocide, environmentalism, and population control.

Darwin then used Malthus’ hokum as the basis of his “theory of natural selection”, in which he argued that man is just another animal, while also championing the new “science” of eugenics founded by his first cousin, Sir Francis Galton. During the 1930s, Julian Huxley and his fellow eugenicist H.G. Wells developed the “theory” for what became the postwar environmentalist movement. Wells wrote that the work of Malthus and Darwin “has destroyed, quietly but entirely, the belief in human equality”, and proven that “whole masses of human population are, as a whole, inferior in their claim upon the future, to other masses”. These “People of the Abyss” should be simply exterminated en masse, Wells wrote, as the precondition to establishing a “World State”.

Following World War II, Huxley and Wells preached that “wildlife conservation”, in which “the spread of man must take second place to the conservation of other species”, would be an essential pretext to establish world government. Bespeaking that hidden agenda, their fellow eugenicist Max Nicholson, a permanent secretary to the Crown’s Privy Council and a co-founder of both the WWF in 1961 and of the earlier International Union for Conservation of Nature (IUCN), titled his 1970 history of the world environmental movement, The Environmental Revolution: A Guide for the New Masters of the World.

Returning to the present, the ACF’s claim that mankind itself is a “key threatening process” will be ruled on by the “Threatened Species Scientific Committee” of the Ministry of Environment, a committee packed with members or associates of the WWF and IUCN, while the Minister himself is Peter Garrett—the president of the ACF from 1989-1993 and again from 1998-2004! Simultaneous with the ACF’s March submission, the Public Affairs Commission of Australia’s Anglican Church—whose international head is Queen Elizabeth—issued a discussion paper in which it linked “overpopulation and environmental degradation”, and called for measures to reduce Australia’s population growth. The recent establishment of a Cabinet-level “Population Ministry” as per the ACF’s earlier demands, is part of this same plot, as is the crusade by the Federal member for Wills, Kelvin “Kill Them” Thomson, to “stabilise” Australia’s population at 26 million by 2050.

The Nature of Man

The real issue behind the present, rigged “population debate” is very simple: is mankind just another animal, as Prince Philip and the eugenicists argue, or do all individual men and women possess creative powers of mind which no animal has, powers which therefore elevate mankind above the beasts? The exercise of these Divine-like powers of the human soul has lawfully increased the human population on this planet orders of magnitude beyond that of any mere animal. And that, as the great Russian scientist Vladimir I. Vernadsky—the creator of the modern concept of the “Biosphere”—argued, is the scientific proof that man’s creative powers of mind lawfully generate a “Noösphere” whose more powerful physical processes (including of great infrastructure projects) naturally dominate the Biosphere just as the more powerful physical processes of life, the Biosphere, dominate the non-living, the Lithosphere. Prince Philip and his ACF, by contrast, simply ban all science and economic development, and then blame any resulting “strains” (such as running out of fresh water, or power), on “overpopulation.” It is they who threaten the Biosphere, as well as mankind in general. For instance, have you noticed that the WWF and its progeny have been resoundingly silent on the massive BP oil spill in the Gulf of Mexico, in what is already the worst ecological disaster in history? Might that have to do with the fact that BP, along with many others of the Crown’s minerals cartel such as Rio Tinto (whose top private shareholder is the Queen herself), are leading funders of the WWF and the entire environmentalist lobby?

But if Prince Philip, Her Majesty’s Anglican Church, the ACF et al. were genuinely worried about “overpopulating” our planet Earth, wouldn’t they therefore be among the first to champion American physical economist Lyndon LaRouche’s proposal for the near-term colonisation of Mars, as a prelude to colonising some of the billions of stars which make up each of the countless billions of galaxies in outer space?
