LaRouche:

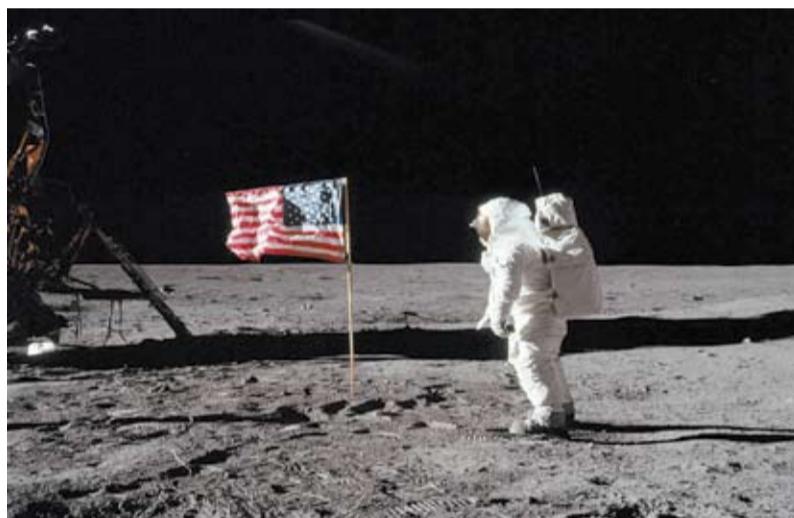

Personal Immortality, or “Clash of Civilisations”?

October 2—The lying news media will never tell you, but the world is now plunging into the greatest economic and financial collapse in centuries. This is not something that is going to happen, it is something that is happening right now.

On September 27, for instance, the 16 largest banks in the United States met at the New York Federal Reserve to figure out how to stop the world financial system from immediately blowing to smithereens after the US$9 billion Amaranth hedge fund of Greenwich, Connecticut declared bankruptcy the previous week, upon the heels of dozens of others of the 8000 hedge funds worldwide. The bankers privately admit that the situation is “a thousand times” more serious than when the $2 billion LTCM hedge fund collapsed in 1998, which almost blew out the system then.

For every $1 of its own capital, Amaranth borrowed $4.50 from banks with which to speculate. So, not $9 billion, but $41 billion went down the chute, which means that entire banks could collapse, as well. In fact, many of the super-speculative hedge funds are merely fronts for banks in the first place.

Then, look at the real estate market: September saw 30%

All of mankind is created in the “living image of God”, and the human soul’s “divine spark” of creativity is nurtured through Classical art and science. The oligarchy is terrified of such creativity, as was the Zeus of Aeschylus’ Prometheus Bound, and unleashes religious war to try to control the world.

collapses in sales and new housing starts in some parts of the U.S., the sharpest plunge since the Great Depression. The multi-trillion dollar real estate industry, in the U.S., in the U.K., and in Australia, in particular, is the centre of the biggest speculative bubble in history, which is now crashing fast.

Then look at the guts of the remaining physical economy of the U.S., the auto sector. Ford Motor Co. just offered a buy-out package to all 75,000 of its blue collar workers (how do you produce cars with no workers?), and fired an additional 10,000 white collar employees. And this comes on top of the de facto bankruptcy and dismantling of General Motors over the last few months, formerly the largest industrial firm in the U.S.

This is a global process, and Australia is part of it, as seen in the evaporation of our manufacturing industry, and the growing joblessness and grinding poverty in our big cities, as well as in our devastated rural sector.

The financial oligarchy behind this “globalisation”-driven collapse are terrified that they will not consolidate fascist control over the world, as they financed

Hitler to do in Germany in the 1930s depression, before the bubble pops, and that they might therefore lose their power in the resulting political upheavals. They have unleashed “terrorism”, “Islamic” or otherwise, as a pretext to launch wars all over the globe and to consolidate fascist control at home, as they are now doing in the U.S. and Australia. They aim to unleash a bloody, worldwide “Clash of Civilisations”—for which Howard and Costello have been doing their bit.

This is the context in which U.S. statesman and physical economist Lyndon

H. LaRouche, Jr. is conducting an extraordinary international series of webcasts with political leaders and government officials from all over the world, in which he is outlining the nature of the political and economic revolutions which must take place to overthrow the globalist system, and return the world to the kind of optimistic, pro-industrial outlook which U.S. President Franklin Delano Roosevelt and our own Prime Minister John Curtin exemplified in their collaboration during World War II. Excerpts from LaRouche’s September 6 webcast are featured on pp.

2-3 of this New Citizen.

The real issue here is the nature of mankind. Are men and women created in the image of the Creator, to continue His work of creation, and leave a far better world for our descendants, so ensuring our own immortal contribution to mankind? Or, are we cattle, to be herded and manipulated for the benefit of a rapacious financial oligarchy? The oligarchy is terrified of LaRouche. Read his address carefully, because the future of the world, and of Australia, depends upon understanding what is now happening in the world, and then acting upon it.

Cheney/Bush Prepare October Nuclear Strike vs. Iran

by Rhys McGuckin

October 1—The offices of LaRouche’s Executive Intelligence Review (EIR) magazine are being flooded with warnings from senior U.S. military and intelligence sources, that Vice President Dick Cheney and his looney puppet George W. Bush are preparing a massive aerial bombardment of Iran during October, with the probable use of nuclear weapons.

Two main factors are driving Bush/Cheney, besides Bush’s own messianic complex. First, Bush and Cheney are owned by the financial oligarchy, who could not care less about whether or not Iran develops nuclear weapons; their goal is “régime change” for world empire, with Iran merely the next cab off the rank, probably Cheney and his controllers could not care less if Iran has nuclear weapons. They want a world empire, and will destroy every sovereign nation state in their way.

to be followed by Syria or North Korea, and, ultimately, China and Russia. Second, there are indications that the Bush/Cheney-dominated Republican Party may lose control of both the U.S. House and Senate to the Democratic Party in the national elections on November 7. Bush and Cheney have committed so many crimes, beginning with lying to get the U.S. into the Iraq war, that they could well be impeached, and even jailed, particularly since LaRouche leads the toughest, most aggressive faction of the Democratic Party, and has campaigned for their impeachment for several years. So they are going for war, global chaos and police states, while they still can.

The operational plans for a strike on Iran have just been revised and updated, and could be activated with virtually no lead time, utilising long range strategic bombers and missiles, and carrier-based fighters already in or near the Indian Ocean and Persian Gulf region. One of those warning of this imminent strike is retired Air Force Colonel Sam

Gardiner, who has just released a chilling 21-page study for the Century Foundation on the subject. Gardiner has assessed that the initial attack will take five days, and will strike at major targets, beyond just the sites believed to house Iran’s nuclear enrichment program. Bush and Cheney will then decide on whether to launch a second-phase attack, hitting Revolutionary Guard sites and other régime targets, aimed at overthrowing the Iranian régime. Gardiner, and virtually all other competent experts judge that the attack will fail to overthrow the régime, and will unleash a worldwide anti-Western jihad, including a slaughter of U.S. troops in Iraq.

Experts have stressed to EIR that, since the Iranians have buried many components of their nuclear program 200 feet below ground, which conventional bombs can not reach, there is a high likelihood that Bush/Cheney will use nuclear “bunker busters”.

The U.S. Congress (the legislative branch) must approve the decision of the President (the executive branch) to go to war, before he does so. Thus, Bush/Cheney would be ripping up the U.S. Constitution by launching a sudden strike on Iran. But that, along with their recent outrageous campaign to have the right to torture prisoners, indicates just how desperate the oligarchy is who owns them. There is enormous resistance in the serving and retired U.S. military to hitting Iran, and LaRouche is spearheading a campaign to stop it, as well.

Editorial

There is only one avenue open to solve the present, existential crisis of civilisation worldwide: the international dialogue initiated in recent months by U.S. statesman and physical economist Lyndon H. LaRouche, Jr. You will see below the quality of this discussion and of the extraordinary level of its participants from U.S. institutions, from Europe, from Russia, from China and elsewhere. What about Australia? So far, our politicians are either too corrupt, too stupid, or too scared to enter this dialogue. Thus, it is up to the Australian population itself to bring our nation into this profound discussion, we "the lower 80%", whose lives, happiness and even continued existence depend upon it.

Toward that end, we have printed 1,000,000 copies of this New Citizen featuring LaRouche's September 6 webcast from Berlin, on top of the 850,000 copies of our last issue, which featured LaRouche's keynote speech to the national conference of the Citizens Electoral Council on August 14, where he addressed some of the same themes, including the role of Australia in the coming, Eurasian-centred world.

Your Responsibility

Any revolution in politics or economics begins in the mind. Therefore, to overturn the present, genocidal system of globalisation, we must develop the ideas with which to replace it—precisely the subject of LaRouche's webcasts. If you want a future, or you want your children or grandchildren to have one, then you, too, must participate in this great, worldwide dialogue by ordering as many copies of this newspaper as you can possibly handle, and getting them out to all your friends and neighbours.

Only an idiot would believe that there is anything which can be done merely within Australia itself, to solve our globalisation-induced misery. We either change the whole system, worldwide, or we in Australia, along with everyone else, go down with it.

You should also know that, already from his acquaintance with Australians during his service in World War II, and even more intimately since, LaRouche has a keen sense of the potential of our nation, because of the qualities of the average Australian. As he emphasised in his address to the CEC, Australians of the Curtin "old Labor" tradition, and Americans of the Franklin, Washington, and FDR tradition share a similar republican, anti-oligarchical spirit.

Let us live up to those noble, shared ideals of the best of America, and of Australia, and join LaRouche in the fight. He is doing as much as anyone could possibly wish. It is up to us to do our part.

LaRouche in Berlin Webcast:

Bring Back The Axioms of Franklin D. Roosevelt

The following are excerpts from an international webcast given by Lyndon H. LaRouche, Jr. on September 6 from Berlin, to audiences in Berlin and Washington, D.C., among numerous other gatherings on all continents. Politicians, government officials, scientists and experts of all sorts asked LaRouche questions, or commented on his presentation. These included: the Democratic Party Caucus in the U.S. Senate; the Brookings Institute think-tank in Washington; Philip Jenninger, a federal MP in Germany for 30 years and president of the German Parliament, 1984-88; Prof. S.G. Luyanin, of the Institute of the Far East of the Russian Academy of Sciences (Russia's premier academic body); Prof. Oleg Kuznetsov, the President of the Russian Academy of Natural Sciences; Mr. Vladimir Borisovich Isakov, vice president of the Russian Chamber of Commerce and Industry, who submitted remarks from the Chamber's president, former Prime Minister of Russia Yevgeni Primakov; Prof. Dai Lunzhang, former chief economist of the Central Bank of China, and first vice president of the China International Economics Relations Society, and many, many others.

The cycle of world history which is coming to a close during the current months, began with the April 1945 death of President Franklin Roosevelt. My first prescience of the fact that this was the beginning of a new cycle of history, a break with the old cycle of history, is, this fact struck me on the evening that our unit, our military unit, which was then passing through India on the way to service in northern Burma, received the news of the death of President Franklin Roosevelt. Now, during the course of that day, a number of the soldiers came to me, and asked if they would have an opportunity to discuss something with me that evening. So, after the Sun set, we went out and we met, and the question was very simple: What does the death of President Roosevelt mean for us now? Now the question came. I wasn't really surprised by the question, but I was surprised. And I heard the words coming out of my mouth, and I can still remember my reply, because it astonished me—my own reply, to the present day—and I said: "I'm really not certain. But I know that we entered this war under the leadership of a great man. And now we are faced, the country is being led by a very little man. I'm afraid for our country."

That was the beginning of a new, current cycle of world history.

A British Massacre

More than a year later, as I was back from service in northern Burma, and I was stationed for a while in Calcutta before returning to the United States, I made the acquaintance of a large number of people, because I was simply that kind of person. I simply got the telephone directories out, looked up all the political parties in Calcutta, and made appointments to meet with leaders of these parties in each case, to find out what really was going on in this country. And in the course of that, having met a large number of the leaders in the Bengal area, there was a case in which one morning, some people assembled in a trolley area on the north side of the Maidan between Darma Hata and Chowringhee juncture, and some of these fellas I knew. And they were going out for a routine demonstration to the Governor General's which was down this long street which extends from Darma Hata, and this was usually a routine demonstration, protesting for Indian independence and so forth.

But on this particular day, the guards, who were armed with these large bamboo sticks with brass tips on them, it was called a lathee, made a lathee charge against the people, and killed and injured a number of people with these particular weapons. This resulted in a large protest, because the country was explosive in its temper at the time. And so, on the following day, there was an influx, a great influx of people, to protest this.

Now, the Maidan is a central—it's still there—it's a central area, a park area, in Calcutta. And up the main street what was then the most prosperous, the shopping street and so forth, Chowringhee, and Chowringhee ran up toward an intersection [with Darma Hata Street] which cut across and ran you out to the direction of the Governor General's Palace. So, the crowd got off the trains and so forth, and several of them were coming down Darma Hata in the direction of the junction of Chowringhee and Darma Hata. At that point, there were British police, with heavy machine guns, stationed at the street at this junction. And as the protest mob came down the street, they opened full fire with machine gun fire into the mob.

On the following day, when I happened to get out there to see what had happened on the previous day, the streets were still covered with the accumulation of dried or semi-dried blood, of these people.

As the result, at that point, the whole population of Bengal virtually swarmed into Calcutta. And the police shut down the trains so more people couldn't come in. But millions of people began marching—around and around the city, day and night. And I would get out in the Maidan area, as a soldier—the British had left town, only Americans were left there, apart from the Indians themselves. And I watched this great mob, surging mob, marching abreast, just marching, marching, marching. And the cries were, and one cry would be "Jai Hind!" [Victory to India!] from the Hindus. And then there'd be a responsive cry, by people in the same ranks, "Pakistan Zindabad!" [Long Live Pakistan!] And they were marching together, for their freedom, and against this monstrosity which typified the British role throughout the British Empire, especially in countries which didn't look white enough to satisfy the British monarchy.

Recolonisation

So, because Roosevelt was dead, and Roosevelt had intended, as he warned Churchill, repeatedly, at the end of the war, Roosevelt told Churchill, we are going to use—not British methods: The world is going to be ruled by American methods. We're going to free the colonies! We're going to assist them to develop, including Sub-Saharan Africa. And he had plans for Africa, for its development. "We're not going to have your methods any more, Winston! We're going to have American methods."

But the moment that Roosevelt died, that policy died. And Churchill and the new President of the United States Truman did a number of things, to prevent that from happening.

Recolonisation occurred. The Dutch army, the wonderful Dutch, moved into [Indonesia] to suppress the free people there. The British government, with support from the Americans, took the Japanese prisoners of war, out of the prisoners of war camp in Indo-China, and freed them! Whereas the United States, with Ho Chi Minh, had freed Indo-China from Japanese occupation.

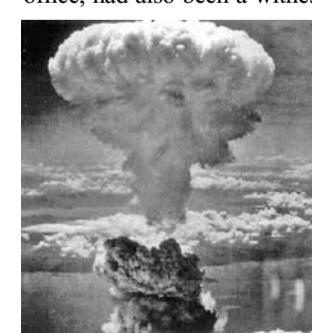

Ho Chi Minh, an American ally. And this was the policy in Africa and elsewhere. The repression of the aspiration of peoples, whereas Roosevelt had meant the freedom of peoples who had been oppressed, and assistance from the American war machine now producing materiel required to assist these countries in developing their infrastructure and developing their economies and achieving the full purposes of freedom, had changed.

Now, some decades after these events, a friend of mine who had served as the chief for the Office of Strategic Services (OSS) operations on the ground in Italy, recounted his visit to the anteroom of the President of the United States, Franklin Roosevelt, where he had accompanied the head of OSS, General Donovan, for Donovan's meeting with Roosevelt. Then, as he described this to me, Donovan came out, gray-faced, saddened. And he said to Max, "It's over." And my friend said of that moment: A bad time for the U.S. and the world at large, became the decades long story of world history since the day that Franklin Roosevelt died.

Nuclear Bombing for World Empire

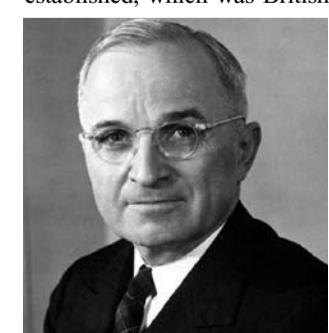

In the meantime, some other developments by August of 1945 had confirmed my prescience of April that same year, '45, of the nation's fate under Truman. The same OSS veteran who had accompanied Donovan into that anteroom of the President's office, had also been a witness on the ground in Italy, because he was doing all the spying against the fascists and so forth, of negotiations which were being conducted on behalf of the Emperor Hirohito of Japan—this was in the middle of, in the spring of 1945. Hirohito, the Emperor of Japan, had used diplomatic channels, through the Vatican Secretary of State, and specifically through the Office of Extraordinary Affairs of the Secretariat of State, which at that time was headed by a Monsignor Montini, later known to the world as Paul VI. And during these negotiations, to which my friend had been privy at that time, the Emperor and other countries, that is, Allied countries, had negotiated what were eventually adopted as the terms of surrender which occurred in 1945, after the bombing of Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

But then, Roosevelt had died.

Now, Truman, who had not known of nuclear weapons until the time he became President, adopted a policy of the most evil man of the last century: Bertrand Russell. Bertrand Russell prescribed that the nuclear weapons, because he was involved in the scientific side on the British side, should be used to attack the Soviet Union with a nuclear attack, for which there were no weapons available after Hiroshima and Nagasaki, for reasons I'll explain. And that the purpose of doing this, as Russell published his policy, that he had earlier established, which was British

In Calcutta in 1946, the British slaughtered 3-4,000 Indians in one day, because they demonstrated for independence. These days, the Anglo-American imperialists slaughter by instigating religious warfare.

Britain's Lord Bertrand Russell (l.) lobbied for the needless nuclear bombing of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, and for nuclear strikes on Russia in 1946, before the Soviets had the bomb, to establish an Anglo-American world empire. Harry S Truman (r.) was a London/Wall St. stooge; he replaced Roosevelt as President when FDR died on April 12, 1945.

St. Mark's Square, Venice (l.) From 1000 A.D. into the 17th Century the Venetians ruled much of the world through "divide-and-conquer" religious warfare. The head of the Spanish Inquisition in the late 15th Century, Torquemada (c.) was their agent. Roosevelt and Churchill (r.) Britain and its Wall St. junior partners rule a Venetian-style world financial empire today; FDR fought Wall St. and the City of London, so he and Churchill clashed.

policy and Truman policy, the policy of preventive warfare against the Soviet Union by a nuclear attack at a time that they believed that the Soviet Union would not have nuclear weapons. And this attack was to do one thing: Not to defeat the Soviet Union, but to have the Soviet Union submit to world government, a world empire, the elimination of the sovereign nation-state by use of nuclear weapons.

And it was at the end of the war, near the end of the war, the United States had, after the German surrender, about that period of time, had three nuclear devices, explosive nuclear devices of weapons quality. One was simply an experimental product of a laboratory job, which is the famous Los Alamos test bomb. There were two others: One was a uranium bomb, a laboratory prototype, not a mass production weapon. The second was a plutonium bomb, again, a laboratory product, not a mass production thing.

So the United States, having a Japan which had to surrender, because the main island of Japan was totally isolated, both by the Soviet forces coming down into Manchuria, and by the U.S. Naval, and U.S. Army, air force, submarine, etc. blockade: Not a single Japanese ship could get in or out of the main island of Japan. And the main island was collapsing economically, because it depends upon imported raw materials, which it could not get access to, from the continent any more.

So, this was done. Totally unnecessary bombing of Japan! There was no military justification—it was a crime against humanity! To use, to postpone a surrender of a defeated adversary, and bomb the population with a new kind of mass destructive weapon, not for the sake of peace, not for the sake of winning a war, but for the sake of launching a policy of nuclear imperialism, to eliminate the institution of the sovereign nation-state on this planet! And that was what the policy was, and that was what Truman's policy was.

Haroun al-Rashid, the great Caliph of Baghdad at the end of the 8th Century, fostered an international Islamic/Christian/Jewish alliance with Charlemagne's Holy Roman Empire and Jews from across Europe into the Middle East and today's Russia.

"Globalisation" is Imperialism

So, in April, when I had a bad feeling about the death of Franklin Roosevelt, I was more than right.

No sooner had the death of Franklin Roosevelt occurred, than the strategic policies of the Truman Administration followed entirely the policies of Winston Churchill, who was on the way out as Prime Minister at that time. Churchill, Truman and their accomplices agreed to do, that which is exactly what I described, Bertrand Russell's policy: Bertrand Russell, the most evil man of the 20th century. Hitler was mild compared to Bertrand Russell. He just didn't get the opportunity to do it.

And the policy, then, as today, of the same faction, is a policy of imperialism, called "globalisation." Maastricht is an instrument, for example, of globalisation. Maastricht is an implement of imperialism.

The policy was to establish world government.

Now, Ben Bernanke, who is the head of the Federal Reserve system, is not Caliphate of Haroun al-Rashid, had been a collaborator of Jews from the Middle East with Charlemagne's system, as a policy with Jewry which had been a policy of cooperation with Haroun al-Rashid and Charlemagne.

What happened is, the Venetians and Norman chivalry declared a policy of anti-Islam, just like today's policy from Washington. The policy of the Clash of Civilisations policy. The Clash of Civilisations which a British intelligence agency, the so-called Arab Bureau, had established as a Clash of Civilisations policy, which is the anti-Islamic policy of today, is the same policy which had been instituted by the Venetians and their Crusader allies a little over a 1,000 years ago. And with that came, at the same time, massive persecution of the Jews, and denial of their rights throughout Europe. The same policy, as Hitler. And Hitler got the policy from the chivalry, who passed the policy to the great Grand Inquisitor Torquemada of Spain, who passed the policy on to the rest Menzies became prime minister in 1949, initiating the "Truman era" in Australia of cold war, red scares, and subservience to the Anglo-American financial oligarchy. Deputy Sheriff Howard continues that imperial bootlicking, using the new form of cold war/red scare known as the "war against terror".

particularly intelligent, at least on performance. He said he's going to establish an American world empire, a new Roman Empire all over the world, which in a sense is his own muddled understanding, as he has a muddled understanding of about everything else he talks about, of what his purpose is. The model of empire, which the British adopted under Lord Shelburne, after the 1763 Treaty of Paris, the policy of empire was not the Roman Empire policy, but the Venetian empire policy. And you see the policy today, very clearly. But then Bernanke is too stupid to know what that policy is. He's also stupid about some other things as well, especially economics.

of Europe.

So the policy against Islam, the policy against Jewry in various countries, is the same policy, the policy of the Venetian Crusader organisation, to this day. That's the enemy. To rule the world by divide and rule by methods of terror. And so that was the policy at that time.

Now, after that, circumstances and times changed rapidly. In the course of events, Truman was forced to back down, and not run for another term, after '48. Because the Korean War was a mess, the Soviet Union had developed nuclear weapons, and it had developed LaRouche (l.) designed the Strategic Defense Initiative (SDI) adopted by U.S. President Ronald Reagan (r.) in 1983, for a joint U.S./Soviet beam weapon defense programme against nuclear missiles, to end the Mutually Assured Destruction (MAD) nuclear terror doctrine, and unleash a global scientific and economic renaissance through new technologies. The oligarchy went bonkers, framed LaRouche up, threw him into jail for five years, attacked the SDI as "Star Wars", and sabotaged the LaRouche/Reagan programme.

the nuclear weapons, actually its own, independently from anything they stole from the United States. ...

Bankers' World Rule

So this is the kind of policy we're dealing with, the idea that the bankers shall rule the world. Or financier groups shall rule the world, and governments will simply be playthings of that. You have that in Europe for example, in the form of the so-called independent central banking system. An independent central banking system, is not a governmental institution. It is a private institution, which, because the governments submit to the bankers, the governments don't do anything that the independent central banking system doesn't allow. If they do it, they may overthrow the government. And parliamentary governments are easily overthrown. So, if you have a parliamentary government, and you have submission to an independent central banking system, your government can be overthrown almost instantly, any time you displease the independent central banking system—which is the financiers behind it. That's the condition in Europe, today. That's the meaning of Maastricht. It's a step toward imperialism, to destroying the sovereignty of every country in Europe. And they want to do the same thing to the United States and rest of the world as well.

So that's our policy.

Now, to understand this, what this means, is the policies which were introduced under Truman, under pressure from the Anglo-Dutch Liberals, against the Roosevelt policies, opened up a change in world history, and opened up a cycle in history, which has played out from April of 1945, from the point of the death of Franklin Roosevelt to the present day. What we are now dealing with, in the world as a whole, is a general breakdown crisis of that system. Because the system is breaking down, the bankers at the top level, who understand this, are moving to make fundamental changes in the forms of government and other things immediately. Because the old system is finished. It can be a matter of days or weeks, that the entire financial system presently existing in the world collapses, and there will be no part of the world which will be exempt from that collapse—a collapse of the United States and Europe.

Let's take just the sequence: Right now, the likely trigger of collapse is the combined British and American real estate investment bubble, with reflections in Europe, which you're seeing in Germany now, especially in recent periods with hedge fund raids, the Heuschrecken [locusts]. If that collapses, this inflation, organised by London, by the Bank of England, their circles, and the Federal Reserve System under Alan Greenspan, depends entirely on hyperinflated investment in real estate. This bubble is about to come down. When the real-estate bubble comes down, the entire system will come down. ...

Therefore, that's the issue

Prime Ministers John Curtin (l.), FDR's staunch ally, and Ben Chifley (r.) were for national banking and sovereignty for Australia. Their policies were overturned by the Anglophile stooge and 1930s Hitler supporter, Robert Menzies.

we face. The issue we face, is, unless we take measures which are feasible, rationally feasible, to prevent this crash by a fundamental, immediate change in the international economic and financial-monetary system, there is not much hope for life on this planet for some time to come. ...

Large-Scale Infrastructure Investments

See, the key thing we have to do right now, we have a world which is in a state of collapse, economic collapse, physical collapse; the infrastructure of Europe is collapsing, the infrastructure of the United States is collapsing. We can no longer continue to support the existing populations in the existing way under these systems. We have to change. We have to have large-scale investments, in water management. We have to have large-scale investments, in mass transportation, instead of all these automobiles jamming things. We have to have investment in health care; investment in development of the territory, more trees planted and so forth, things of that sort.

About 50% of any economy which is soundly organised, modern economy, 50% goes into areas which are neither white-collar work in a sense, or non-skilled work, but into things which are investments in basic economic infrastructure, which are investments which have a 25- to 50-year life, physical life. And these investments, which are made possible by government sponsorship of the creation of the capital to be loaned, to be invested in these investments, and also in private investments which are contributions to society; and then regulating and protecting these by price protection, by fair-price levels rather than free-trade levels. If you're going to invest in a firm, you're not going to bankrupt it by driving the price down to the point that it can't carry its own capital. You're going to regulate! You're going to regulate taxation. You're going to regulate prices, as we did under Roosevelt.

We produced, between the time that Roosevelt entered office, and the end of the war, we produced the greatest economic machine the world had ever seen! We defeated the Nazis not because we were better soldiers. We weren't. We defeated the Nazis because we had tons, where they had hundreds of pounds of raw materials. We contributed to the Soviet ability to defeat the Wehrmacht [German army], by materiel—tanks, yes! Lots of other things—planes; the ability to make planes, the ability to build tanks: Logistics.

And therefore, you say, 50% of the total national revenue must be considered as going into investment in, and maintenance, of basic economic infrastructure. No free market.

In private initiative, you're looking for ingenuity. You want to protect the ingenious, creative, and useful producer. You want to give opportunities. You don't want too many big industries. You have a lot of what we call closely-held industries, where the purpose of the investment is not to make profit for a stockholder. The purpose of the investment is to allow an entrepreneur to build up a firm which is useful to society. And whose motive in existence is not just to make a lot of money, but to be a success, a success in the coming generations of an industry which is useful to society.

Real Wealth: Science & Culture

An ugly thing that is missing in this, is that people don't understand what value is. Value is not monetary. Monetary value belongs to a slave system, or a degenerate form of society. The source of wealth is not speculation, is not competition, in

The "Liz Symons" referred to in the text is Baroness Elizabeth Symons, a former British Cabinet minister and intimate of Tony Blair; her friend "Lynne Cheney" is an author of lesbian pornographic novels, and the wife and controller of the snarling sociopath, Vice President Dick Cheney.

Let the faithful of Islam hear my warning words, before it is too late for us to prevent a terrible consequence for all humanity! ...

Jesus Christ was born a Jew, and was murdered as what Rome viewed as a threat of reestablishment of a Jewish state.

Christ's principal Apostles were Jews, as this is typified by the close association of the Apostle Peter with the great Jewish teacher Philo of Alexandria.

The exemplary relation of Jew and Christian, alike, to Islam, is that typified by the collaboration of Christian, Muslim, and Jew which was expressed in the collaboration between Charlemagne and the Baghdad Caliphate. It should have been always, as the great theologian of Europe's Fifteenth-Century Renaissance, Cardinal Nicholas of Cusa, presented this fact in his De Pace Fidei.

However, ever since Charlemagne's leadership in ecumenicism among Christian, Jew, and Islam, the legacy of the imperial Rome which perpetrated the judicial murder of Jesus Christ and masses of Christians, has repeatedly sought to reaffirm the oligarchical system of imperial reign, through putting Christians, Jews, and Muslims against one another's throats, as we see in the press orchestration of today's widespread, fraudulent representation of the implications of an excerpt from Pope Benedict's address. The history of the British Empire, to the present day of the British Arab Bureau's Bernard Lewis, is exemplary of this use of religious warfare as an instrument of attempted global imperial reign by Venetian-style financier-oligarchy, the same attempt expressed today by the use of "globalisation" to eradicate the institution of the sovereign nation-state.

The corrupt action of the international press, in this matter, has the ominous character of an effort to arrange the assassination of a Pope Benedict not much liked among Lynne Cheney's friends in Liz Symons' London, and have the Islamic world blamed for the attempt.

Indeed, the widespread, fraudulent representation of the recent address on the subject of ecumenism, by Pope Benedict, can not be competently understood, except as a fresh expression of the malicious propaganda-effort of the British Arab Bureau's Bernard Lewis (the assigned controller of Harvard-trained British agents Henry Kissinger, Zbigniew Brzezinski, and Samuel P. Huntington's "Clash of Civilisations"). So, as the Roman Empire sought to destroy Charlemagne's ecumenical collaboration among Christians, Jews, and Islam, through the Venetian-directed Norman Crusaders, the contemporary Anglo-Dutch-Liberal faction of today's imperial finance has created and deployed Bernard Lewis' pro-satanic dogma of "Clash of Civilisations," using not only corrupt U.S. creatures such as Kissinger, Huntington, and their ilk, but also Bush-loving fanatics whose adopted beliefs are close to the essentials of a Satanic cult.

Meanwhile, elements in the ranks of nominal Muslims who have been traditionally assets spun out of London's puppet Al-Afghani, are used by Anglo-Dutch-Liberal intelligence organisations, as creatures from a drama written and directed by Bernard Lewis, to seek, thus, to bring Islam to self-destruction of its peoples from within.

Witness those abysmally immoral degenerates, the fanatical backers of a lunatic President George W. Bush, Jr., whose very presence in office defiles the name of Christianity. Witness nominal Catholics who continue the tradition of the Habsburgs and Coudenhove-Kalergi in frankly fascist guise still today, the continuing tradition of the religious warfare of 1492-1648.

See the fraudulent mass-media treatment of Benedict's proffer of a dialogue of religions, as being a part of the preparations for Vice-President Dick Cheney's intended launching of a probably nuclear-armed attack on Iran at some moment of orchestrated opportunity prior to the November U.S. mid-term elections.

Such an attack on Iran would be the detonator of an unquenchable global holocaust which would not end until it had burned out the combustible material of our planet as a whole. Such an attack on Iran is the goal of those behind the fraudulent operation against Pope Benedict run on Vice-President Cheney's behalf, through a complicit European and other corrupt, and usually lying mass media, on whose rotten moral character I have remarkably expert personal experience.

Any political leader of any nation, who is not a fool, will quickly see this matter as I do. Anyone foolish enough to play into the game which an orchestrated press has played through the fraudulent treatment of an excerpt taken from the Pope's remarks, will be guilty of any Hell on Earth which continued promotion of the press-hoax is clearly intended to facilitate.

1. What Must You Believe?
The common conception of the nature of man and woman, shared among Jew, Christian, and Muslim, is that distinction emphasised in the conclusion of the first Chapter of the Book of Genesis.

The Creator of the universe must be recognised as a living personality, whose nature, as distinguished from that of all of the beasts, is reflected in the essential nature of the immortal essence of the creative powers, absent among the beasts, but which is the essential distinction of the human personality. On priority in all matters, including religious belief?

Pope Benedict (l.) Jamal al-Din al-Afghani (1838-97) (c.) British Arab Bureau "Islam specialist" Bernard Lewis (r.) The oligarchy deploys its agents in all religions to stoke a "Clash of Civilisations". The British Arab Bureau's al-Afghani, for instance, founded modern Islamic fundamentalism through his freemasonic Muslim Brotherhood.

Take the case of the Netherlands today. One of the ugliest problems of moral corruption seen anywhere on this planet today, is the notorious Dutch policy toward persons past the age of seventy years. Euthanasia is cheaper than Nazi death-camps as a way of ridding a nation of an unwanted population. A nation which tolerates such practice of so-called "euthanasia" should be regarded as an outlaw nation until such time as it might mend its ways.

Of course, this policy of mass murder in the name of "euthanasia," was begun by my wealthy enemies inside the U.S.A., not Nazi Germany. The Dutch gave us the Elm disease; the U.S.A. gave Hitler and today's Dutch government the euthanasia disease.

This illustrates the point, that the worst crimes against humanity are those practised in the name of adopted policies of governments, or, simply, the spread of a certain strain of popular opinion. Thus, the greatest of all crimes is lack of a primary emphasis on love for all mankind. Religious and racial hatred, such as anti-Semitism, or hatred against Islam, or hatred of Christians, is, on record of known history, the most evil expression of criminality to be seen on the planet today.

Return attention to Nicholas of Cusa's De Pace Fidei on this account. If you love the Creator, you must view all branches of the human family in that light, as Cusa presents that argument there. This was the stroke of genius expressed by the role of Cardinal Mazarin, in bringing the warring people of Europe to the commitment to "love one another," in the 1648 Peace of Westphalia. The great danger to all humanity today, is the attempts, on the one side, of pitifully deranged minds like that of President George W. Bush, Jr., or the brutally pro-Satanic Vice-President Dick Cheney, to launch a war against Islam, and the danger that forces within Islam would tend to react in kind. In either case, especially in the case of such responses from both sides, civilisation throughout this planet would be doomed to effects to be suffered for generations yet to come.

The same forces behind the fraudulent campaigns of a corrupt international press, in using a willfully lying fallacy of composition to stir up Islamic hatreds against a Pope Benedict, are the forces behind the intention of having Vice-President Cheney launch a terrible aerial attack of about a month's duration against Iran and other targets. If you wish a session in Hell for yourself and also for your descendants, if any actually live, continue the kind of pattern of action and reaction which the widespread press-hoax against Pope Benedict unleashed during this past week.

price competition. The source of wealth is science, primarily. The source of wealth is the individual mind's mastery of principles of nature, that no animal could discover. Is applying these discoveries of principle to increase man's power per capita, and per square kilometre, in the territory of society.

The same thing is true in culture: that Classical culture, which is the mode of developing people's relations with other people, which enables them to cooperate and be more productive; which enables them to think, as people used to do, even in the more poor cultures, people used to think, before the Baby Boomer was invented, they used to think that what I'm doing with my life, is going to be realised in my children and my grandchildren. What is beautiful to me, is the fact that my life could make things better for the coming generation, and I can live in such a way, I have a sense of a participation in immortality. Which is done with Classical art, done in similar ways.

Victorian State Election Saturday, 25 Nov. 2006

Authorised: G Peut 595 Sydney Rd Coburg Vic 3058

The 1648 Treaty of Westphalia ended 150 years of Venetian-rigged bloody religious warfare in Europe, by each nation seeking the "advantage of the other". It ushered in the era of modern nation states, which the oligarchy is trying to destroy.
