Locking up Australian fisheries is a crime against humanity

The Australian government is again proving its commitment to green genocide by its move to lock away even more Australian fisheries in "marine parks", which is intended to reduce our fisheries output, ramp up the price of seafood, and deny the people of Australia and the world an important source of food.

"This policy is a calculated crime against humanity," charged Citizens Electoral Council leader Craig Isherwood today.

"The Commonwealth Government's plan to establish a National Representative System of Marine Protected Areas (NRSMPA) by 2012 along with similar State Government schemes, are based on scientific quackery," he said. "Australia has the lowest fishing harvest rate in the world—about one-thirtieth of the global average—so any claims of overfishing are absurd lies."

Mr Isherwood pointed out that Thailand, Australia's largest supplier of seafood imports, harvests 11 times the quantity of Australian fisheries in wild catch and their aquaculture industry is 30 times larger than our own, yet in area Thailand's Exclusive Economic Zone (EEZ) is only four per cent that of Australia's, and its continental shelf area, which provides most of the catch, is 10 times smaller!

Even though greenies scream that Thailand's large harvest rate is overfishing, it has remained near its present level for the past 20 years.

The same greenies and successive Australian governments have deliberately sabotaged Australia's potential to have one of the world's largest fishing industries. Two-thirds of Australia's seafood consumption is imported, which costs $1.7 billion per year, yet satellites measuring chlorophyll concentration, which is associated with plankton—fish food—indicate Australian waters show similar potential fishing productivity to other nations.

Australia's Marine Protected Areas (MPA) already cover 2.2 million square kilometers, which is 38 per cent of the total global protected area. Plans to expand MPAs into the Coral Sea, the Great Australian Bight and other areas will mean Australia alone accounts for one-half of the global total!

In addition, fishery quotas, access fees and license fees cost fishing businesses hundreds of thousands of dollars and are crippling the industry—especially (as usual) the small players. On top of this, the same governments which don't regulate banks and financial speculators, deliberately smother the fishing industry in regulations—size limits, bag limits, boat limits, closed seasons and no-take species—which also serve to cut our food supply.

Many Australian fishermen have been driven out of the industry, and too many have been driven to suicide; as the industry shrinks, more are now giving up the struggle to remain viable.

Mr Isherwood continued, "Marine scientist Dr Walter Starck recently stated, 'In current economic conditions adding more and more ill-conceived restrictions onto our food producers is tantamount to treason in a time of war.'"

"And actually, we are in a time of war now—we're at war with the British Empire, the Queen and her consort Prince Philip and their eco-fascist Green movement.

"These Marine Protected Areas have been forced on Australians by the International Union for Conservation of Nature (IUCN) and its Convention on Biological Diversity, which we signed at the 1992 Rio Earth Summit. This is the IUCN formed in 1948 by Sir Julian Huxley, a Life Fellow of the British Eugenics Society from 1925 and its President from 1959-62, long after Nazi eugenics was known to be the evil racist pseudoscience that it is. The IUCN's constitution was written by the British Foreign Office with the intent to further British imperialism under the cover of conservation.

"At the opening of the Rio Earth Summit, the Secretary-General, Maurice Strong posed the question: 'Isn't the only hope for the planet that the industrialised civilisations collapse? Isn't it our responsibility to bring that about?'"

"Fishing is a hallmark of civilization. As much as anything, it was the development of fishing as a reliable food source that led to civilizations developing along rivers and beside oceans, and allowed the first leap upwards in population growth. This British policy will send us back to the Stone Age.

"When considering the large-scale clinical and epidemiological studies showing significant health benefits from increased seafood consumption, it is genocidal to restrict this important food source."

He concluded, "Australia has the world's third largest Exclusive Economic Zone (EEZ) area and as an island continent we have a responsibility to foster a thriving fishing and aquaculture industry that can feed the world. Join us and make that a reality!"

Gillard/Greens aren't saving cows, they are pushing genocide

“Who will save the farmers?” Citizens Electoral Council leader Craig Isherwood demanded to know, following the Gillard government's suspension of live cattle exports to Indonesia for up to six months.

“This whole issue is Green/media bulldust,” he declared. “The government's decision doesn't suddenly ensure animal welfare. It doesn't suddenly change the practices of small-time abattoir operations in Indonesia.

“What it does do is bludgeon thousands of food producers in the cattle industry, and deny literally millions of people in Indonesia an important source of protein, which is precisely their intention,” he charged.

Mr Isherwood charged that the British Crown has ordered the Gillard-Greens coalition government to “cull” the population of Australia, and of the world given Australia's crucial importance in world food production.

“In every policy Gillard is pushing—small population, shutting down the Murray-Darling Basin food bowl, the carbon tax, and now this—she is dutifully carrying out the genocidal depopulation directives of the Queen and her consort Prince Philip's World Wide Fund for Nature.

“As a proud member of the Fabian Society, all of whose 19th Century British founders such as the Webbs, H.G. Wells, George Bernard Shaw, and Bertrand Russell preached depopulation (and whose chief financier was Sir Ernest Cassel, the closest personal friend of the Prince of Wales, later King Edward VII), Gillard is committed to genocide as well; not surprisingly, it was her fellow Fabian and depopulation fanatic Kelvin Thomson who led the supposed backbench revolt in the Federal ALP caucus to force the blanket ban on live exports to Indonesia.”

The CEC National Secretary pointed out the suspension would have devastating consequences.

“As Four Corners admitted, Indonesians don't have enough refrigeration, so they rely on the live export trade to allow them to buy their beef fresh. By denying them the trade, the Indonesian people are being denied precious protein which enables them to live longer and stronger. The impact of this will be exactly what Prince Philip's darling, the eugenicist and pioneering greenie Macfarlane Burnet sought to achieve in the 1940s, when he advocated poisoning waterways and crops in Asian nations with biological agents to cull their populations.

“Bob Katter was more right than perhaps he realised when he said, ‘We have to assume [the Greens'] solution is to starve a lot of people to death’.

“And as for the Australian producers, this is a body-blow. A six-month suspension puts them at the mercy of the banks—who have none—and it gives the banks an excuse to foreclose on family farming operations, just as they were tipped off to do in the Murray-Darling Basin. The decision-makers in Canberra undoubtedly know this.”

Mr Isherwood said this decision was the latest attack in a long-term campaign by successive governments to drive family farmers off the land, which have included:

- The staged destruction of the Australian Wheat Board single desk on behalf of the multinational grain cartel companies such as Cargill (other commodities' single desks, e.g. sugar, were also destroyed);
- Macquarie Bank's design and enforcement of National Competition Policy, to smash whole industries, including the dairy industry, and strip farmers of any protection from the predatory pricing of the Coles-Woolworths duopoly;
- The Coles/Woolies/ACCC price war against farmers, directed by the British gang running Coles;
- Bans on standard agricultural land clearing practices, to stop farmers from growing food and feeding livestock;
- The deliberate buy-up of prime agricultural land to turn into green reserves and national parks, which, along with economic attrition, has reduced the total land used for food production in Australia by more than 100 million hectares in just a few decades;
- Legislation such as Queensland's Wild Rivers laws to squash any development of the top end into a new food bowl;
- Exposing prime agricultural land to ruin by multinational mining and gas companies;
- Tax breaks for managed investment scams to buy up farmland for tree plantations;
- Forcing food producers to transport their goods on more expensive road transport, by shutting down railways or prioritising existing rail for mining;
- The deliberate disregard for rebuilding roads and bridges in rural areas damaged or destroyed by the recent floods;
- The Water Act 2007, and the Murray-Darling Basin Authority's plan, to shut down the national food bowl by stripping irrigators of their water entitlements, and encouraging the banks to mass-foreclose on the farmers and their communities.
- The carbon tax/ETS, which will force thousands of farmers to convert their land from food production to carbon storage, i.e. tree plantations.

Mr Isherwood continued, “The Queen's husband's WWF is targeting the beef industry in their plot to establish a global ‘Sustainable Beef Industry’ a euphemism for slashing beef production to help slash the world's population.

“Therefore, it wouldn't matter if the cattle in Indonesia were being fed alfalfa and played Vivaldi's Four Seasons as they were dispatched; the Royal green mafia, which includes the people-hating animal liberationists, and their accomplices in the government, are determined to destroy it.

“There are many reasons why it is better to process meat in our own abattoirs than export live animals, but the way this decision was taken was calculated to destroy not just live exports, but the meat industry in general.”

He concluded, “The fight to save the industry is a fight for the welfare of humanity, including the millions in other countries who depend upon our food. If you want to win that fight, join the CEC.”

CEC Weekly Report exposes British attack on Aussie food security, sovereignty

Watch this week's CEC Weekly Report with Robert Barwick and Craig Isherwood  Go online to: [http://cecaust.com.au/main.asp?sub=media&id=/video/20110408\_cec\_wr.htm ] to see what Australia must do to defend its food production from total destruction by British free traders and greenies.

Under a systematic, relentless assault by British free trade, British greenies, British bankers and British corporate executives, Australian agriculture has been pushed to the verge of extinction. In a special feature in the 8th April Weekly Report, the scope of the food production crisis is detailed:

The Murray-Darling Basin is being smashed by the British Royal Family's eco-fascist World Wide Fund for Nature (WWF), Australian Conservation Foundation (ACF), and Tim Flannery-led Wentworth Group, as well as City of London-controlled bankers. Also revealed is the CSIRO's latest plan [Read more about online: <http://www.smh.com.au/environment/water-issues/from-the-basin-to-forest-if-price-is-right-20110404-1cyp1.html>] to use the carbon tax to wipe out agriculture altogether in the lower Murray-Darling Basin.

British resource companies are leading the charge to destroy some of Australia's best farmland in the Liverpool Plains of NSW and Darling Downs in Queensland, to loot even more of Australia's coal and gas; Australia is now a quarry, wherein mining production is now valued at $121 billion, compared with agricultural production of $27 billion.

Australia's dairy industry has been smashed by deregulation imposed under the National Competition Policy designed by British bankers at Macquarie Bank. In ten years, Queensland has lost 1,000 dairy farmers, many through suicide; in Victoria and Tasmania, the average farm debt has skyrocketed.

British executives imported to run Coles have launched a war, supported by Woolworths and the ACCC, on dairy farmers, as well as egg farmers, chicken meat producers, and other fruit and veggie farmers, which is designed to annihilate family farmers for good. These new British executives at Coles include: Managing Director Ian McLeod, Operations Director Stuart Machin, Finance Director Tony Buffin, Marketing Director Joe Blundell, Development Director Gavin Parker, Merchandise Director John Durkan,

General Manager Operations Support Andy Coleman, along with other senior staff hired from British chains Tesco and Sainsbury. This wholesale British takeover has been coordinated by Wesfarmers "consultant" Archie Norman, former boss of UK retailer Asda.

Citizens Electoral Council leader Craig Isherwood makes it clear that the fight for food security for Australia is actually a fight for sovereignty, declaring:

"If we were really sovereign, we wouldn't tolerate for one second this British decimation of our family farms!"

Craig explains the difference between sovereignty and autonomy, lays out the importance of a national credit system, without which no nation can be sovereign, and exposes Tony Abbott and the Coalition as complicit in the betrayal of Australia's food production, and sovereignty, to the British.

The purpose of this feature is not information—it is to fight, and stop, this destruction. Every Australian must watch it, and join in the fight.

CSIRO plan 'carbon storage' to replace food production in MDB

The zombie "scientists" at the CSIRO whose brains were eaten out by Prince Philip have revealed a plan to replace food production in the lower Murray-Darling Basin with carbon "storage".

CSIRO chief executive Megan Clarke showed attendees at their Greenhouse 2011 conference in Cairns earlier this month an image projecting how land use in the basin would change, under various levels of a carbon price (see Picture).

At $36 per tonne, the CSIRO projects carbon storage would completely replace food production in the lower, and most productive, part of the basin.

Carbon storage means either 'storing' carbon in the soil, which takes the soil out of production, or in tree plantations.

The CSIRO's plan again raises the question the CEC posed in 2009, "How many people have to die for the carbon price to be successful?"

CHANGING FACE OF THE LOWER MURRAY-DARLING BASIN

Increased carbon price makes changing farm operations from food production to tree growing an attractive alternative in parts of NSW, Victoria and South Australia in the Lower Murray-Darling Basin.
