Western backing of neo-Nazi uprising in Ukraine a trigger for thermonuclear war

Australia's Anglo-American allies are behind the present crisis in Ukraine, which is part of a strategy that is pushing the world into a near-term thermonuclear war.

What the media paints as "democratic" protests in Ukraine is in fact an armed neo-Nazi insurgency with Western backing.

The aim of the uprising is to install a pro-NATO regime in Ukraine, which, combined with the U.S.-NATO expansion of its missile defence system to secure a nuclear first strike option against Russia and China, would very likely provoke Moscow into war. Just as the U.S. would not tolerate a hostile regime in Mexico or Canada, Moscow will not tolerate a hostile regime on its border. (Australia is heavily involved in the first strike nuclear targeting of China and Russia, through our extensive signals intelligence infrastructure and hosting of various U.S. military bases, so we are also a target in any nuclear exchange.)

The scandal is that, similarly to the way the West has aided and abetted al-Qaeda terrorists in Syria, the Anglo-Americans are supporting actual neo-Nazis in Ukraine, who march under the red-and-black banner of the Organisation of Ukrainian Nationalists (OUN-B), the Nazi collaborators led by Stepan Bandera who exterminated tens of thousands of Jews and Poles as an adjunct of the Nazi occupation of Ukraine in WWII. The previous president of Ukraine who was the golden boy of the West, Viktor Yushchenko, in 2010 named the WWII Nazi Bandera a "Hero of Ukraine" in one of his last acts as President. The neo-Nazi uprising is targeting his successor, current president Viktor Yanukovich, whose decision in November to back out of a plan to sign an Association Agreement with the economically moribund European Union, and orient toward the more vibrant Eurasian economies instead, sparked the crisis.

On 25 January, 2014, thirty Ukrainian leaders of political parties, civic and religious organisations, including former presidential candidate and parliamentarian Natalia Vitrenko, sent an open letter to the United Nations Secretary General and leaders of the EU and the United States, decrying the Western support for the neo-Nazi campaign to carry out a bloody coup against a legitimately elected government.

The open letter read, in part: "You should understand that, in supporting the actions of the guerillas in Ukraine ... you yourselves are directly protecting, inciting, and egging on Ukrainian neo-Nazis and neofascists. None of these oppositionists (Yatsenyuk, Klitschko, and Tyahnybok) hide that they are continuing the ideology and the practices of the OUN-UPA. ... Wherever the Euromaidan people go in Ukraine, they disseminate, besides the slogans mentioned above, neo-Nazi, racist symbols. ... Also confirming the neo-Nazi nature of the Euromaidan is the constant use of portraits of the bloody executioners of our people, Bandera and Shukhevych—agents of the Abwehr."

Left. The fascist Stepan Bandera (in the wartime uniform of the Organization of Ukrainian Nationalists), who fought with the Nazis against the Soviet Army, is a hero today of the Euromaidan right-wingers. Right. The youth group of the Social-National Party of Ukraine, on the march with their swastika banner in Lviv in 1999. The party's name evoked that of the German National-Socialist ("Nazi") party. The swastika was dropped in 2003 and the party was renamed Svoboda in 2004.

In recent days some major media outlets have reported the fascist component of the Ukraine uprising: The Guardian on 29 January ran the headline, "In Ukraine, Fascists, Oligarchs and Western Expansion Are at the Heart of the Crisis," with the kicker: "The story we're told about the protests gripping Kiev bears only the sketchiest relationship with reality."

CounterPunch magazine also on 29 January published an article by Eric Draitser, "Ukraine and the Rebirth of Fascism," which began with the warning: "The violence on the streets of Ukraine is far more than an expression of popular anger against a government. Instead, it is merely the latest example of the rise of the most insidious form of fascism that Europe has seen since the fall of the Third Reich. ... In an attempt to pry Ukraine out of the Russian sphere of influence, the U.S.-EU-NATO alliance has, not for the first time, allied itself with fascists."

The respected American strategic analyst and physical economist, Lyndon LaRouche, is urgently warning that the strategic crisis caused by the Anglo-American's instigation of the Ukrainian uprising could escalate into a thermonuclear exchange in a matter of weeks. LaRouche is demanding the U.S. Congress immediately impeach President Barack Obama and remove him from office, so that the U.S. can step back from the brink with Russia and end the danger of a thermonuclear exchange that would exterminate the planet.

Fig. 1. Anglo-American "Containment" of Russia.

As Eurasia's keystone nation, Russia has been surrounded by political, economic, and military destabilisations. The map shows countries that are neighbours, allies, or economic partners of Russia and have been affected by past or intended future "regime change" through Colour Revolutions (a technique developed at Oxford University and aimed against Vladimir Putin in Russia beginning 2011) or military insurgencies.

The red symbols show the European Ballistic Missile Defence System, created as part of NATO's eastward expansion. Potentially part of an attack on Russia, it is identified by Moscow as a threat to its sovereignty and a tripwire for war. The Euro BMDS is part of the global U.S. missile defence project, which in the Pacific region meshes with similar attempts at what Malcolm Fraser calls "a policy of containment" against China.

Fig. 2. Anglo-American Military Encirclement of Russia and China.

The U.S.-Israeli-NATO military buildup around Southwest Asia (violet dots) directly targets Iran and Syria, but the ultimate targets in a global showdown are Russia and China. The green dots along Russia's western borders show the U.S.-NATO European Ballistic Missile Defence System, which Moscow has called a trigger for war. In the Asia-Pacific region, the yellow dots represent the increasing U.S. military presence for confronting China, into which Australia has been drawn. U.S. Navy Ohio-class submarines armed with Trident II D5 submarine-launched ballistic missiles (locations shown are representative of operating areas) are the strategic nuclear capability that would inflict a first strike on Russia or China.
